Chris & Lori,

In regards our recent transaction together... though we understand it is customary in our world to recognize performance solely through remuneration—whatever its level of effort &/or result—and leave it at that, we think when performance is exceptional in some way or ways—as is amply the case here—that it not only merits but necessitates special commendation.

And so... Never before have we experienced a real estate sale to be so expertly executed... So seamlessly smooth, skillful, and successful ...as well as swift to boot! Your dedication to your work and professional mastery are not only amply evident, but greatly appreciated as well.

Thank you for everything.... It was a rare privilege to sell our house through you. And though we are confident you do not need our good wishes going forward, you nevertheless have them as well.

All the very best to you both,
